Relief on the Left Bank

In 2025, ADRA continues its support for refugees and by operating two registration centers on the left bank of the Dniester River, in Rîbnița and Tiraspol. These centers were established to facilitate access to multifunctional financial assistance and legal aid for individuals in vulnerable situations. Anastasia, a mother of two from Kharkiv currently living in a rented accommodation, shares: "The financial assistance and legal advice provided by the ADRA team are extremely helpful to us. When we contacted the lawyer here, he did everything he could to answer our questions." Through this initiative, supported by IOM Moldova, refugees receive tailored support to help them meet their basic needs, including access to food, shelter, and healthcare. The project plays a vital role in protecting and empowering displaced families across the region. Learn more about this initiative here.

Finding Inner Peace

Mirkiras recently held its first MHPSS group session led by a psychologist, launching a new support component under the "Harmony in the Community: Support and Integration" project. Organized as part of the broader livelihoods initiative, the session provided a safe space for participants to explore personal resilience and emotional wellbeing. Refugees shared personal experiences, explored coping mechanisms for stress and anxiety, and practiced techniques for emotional regulation. The initiative creates a warm and trusting environment, strengthening connections among community members and encouraging mutual support. This activity is implemented by the consortium Helvetas, HEKS/EPER Moldova, and the Norwegian Refugee Council, in partnership with NEA and support of the Swiss Cooperation in Moldova. ## Language for Integration

In February 2025, the Charity Centre for Refugees, with the support of UNHCR Moldova, organized a new Romanian language learning sessions at the CCR Community Centre. These classes are part of ongoing efforts to foster the integration of Ukrainian refugees through education. The increasing demand for Romanian language courses reflects the strong motivation of refugees to engage with their host community and participate more actively in community life.
By combining structured language learning with community-based support, the initiative helps participants expand their opportunities and contribute to local development. The CCR team remains committed to advancing inclusion by ensuring continued access to practical, needs-based educational programs

Parenting in Displacement

Twelve refugee women from Ukraine raising adolescent children took part in a parenting workshop organized by Keystone Moldova. The session focused on strengthening emotional connection and providing effective support to their teenagers. It offered a space for mothers to explore practical strategies for understanding and responding to the needs of adolescents. Key topics included open communication, conflict management, and setting healthy boundaries.

Participants shared experiences, reflected on parenting challenges, and found encouragement through peer support. This activity is part of a broader project implemented with financial support from the German Federal Foreign Office, through DKH, under a grant contract with APSCF. ## Colors of Cojușna

IIn Cojușna, spring came to life through art as members of the senior community gathered for workshops focused on capturing the season's beauty on canvas. Part of a broader initiative across nine regions of Moldova, these workshops have grown into a supportive community that offers participants a sense of connection and belonging. Seniors meet regularly to socialize, explore new techniques, and express themselves through painting.

This activity is part of the project "Increasing the Social Inclusion of Older People, Including Refugees from Ukraine, Through Participation in Active Aging Programs," supported by UNFPA Moldova in partnership with the Ministry of Labour and Social Protection and the Moldcell Foundation, and implemented by HelpAge Moldova with financial support from the UK Government.
